ABOUT THE APP

Vintage Athens is an app that allows the user to explore the city of Athens through its buildings and locations from decades past. The idea is that we take a popular building, like Sanford Stadium, and show a photo on a map from a different time. It is a walking museum of sorts. The people of Athens love their city. This is their app. Athens evokes a nostalgic feeling from anyone who has ever been here and this app captures that in tangible form.

TECHNOLOGY

Mapping

The Fusion Mapping app from Google allows the user to create a map with place marks. Data sets must be imported which the system auto detects to name the location.

Crowdsourcing

We'll be implementing a feature to submit user content and have it automated and filtered to the main content page using a tag system. The tags will be required for selection from a menu before a user can post an image.

Timeline

We'll be utilizing vis.js to build out our timeline. This is a java script tool that can use a singular date or a range of dates to display data on a timeline. The time scale automatically adjusts. Timeline uses HTML DOM to render what's put onto it.

THANK YOU

We would like to think last semester's capstone group who created the idea of Vintage Athens: Allie Fogel, Amy Fu, John Greer and Colin Murphy. We'd also like to thank The University of Georgia Special Collections library, our capstone professors. Emuel Aldridge, Scott Shamp and especially, our group mentor, John Weatherford.
